	PreGame Notes
1.	This will be a huge 1-on-1 defense game for us. They play a with a lot of freedom and will look to attack the basket. Need to be in good help position and contest shots. They finished the pre-season First in scoring at 11.5.5 points per game.
2.	We have to get them stopped in transition. They were second in the pre-season in Fast Break points per game and 3rd in points in the paint which comes mostly from the lay-ups and dunks they get in transition. They will look to push the ball every time. They will shoot a lot of quick shots in transition.
3.	We have to eliminate their Lobs. We can take away possibly 10-14 points if we take away their lob plays.
4.	We need to do all the little things this game. Ball pressure to prevent easy lobs, box out every time and make them come over our backs, sprint back in transition and contain our man off the dribble. We have to keep them in front of us and turn them into a jump shooting team and see if they can beat us like that.
5.	We can't get sucked into playing at their pace and playing their style. They want to make the game fast and like a pick up game. We have to control tempo and play our game.

OFFENSIVE NOTES

- TRANSITION- Denver loves to run, force tempo, and attack the basket in the open floor. They will run on every opportunity for lay-ups, lobs, or quick shots. They all run the floor hard and Miller is always looking to throw ahead for easy baskets. Their main offense comes from fast break, they are most effective playing in the open floor. They will throw long outlets and touchdown passes.
- This is a huge individual defense game. They will play a lot of one-on-one and free-lance basketball. If they dont have anything in their fast break they will run iso's or early post ups for Anthony, Martin, Miller or whoever has the ball.
- They will set a lot of early drag action pnr's and random pnr's in the half court.
- We need to be able to get the ball stopped in transition and take away as many fast break opportunities as we can. If can take away initial break we can get them to force bad shots and get out of sync offensively.
- We have to eliminate their lobs. Miller is always looking to throw lobs in transition as well as the half court. Martin, Anthony, Camby, Smith among others are always running for lobs or slipping pindowns for the lob.
- They will play fee-lance a majority of the time and even when they do run a set they will break plays early for one-on-one play. They are not a good executing team in their half court offense.
- They are not a good perimeter shooting team. They have players who can make shots perimeter shots, Anthony, Smith, Boykins but as a whole they struggle shooting from the outside.
- They are running a lot of DHO's in transition and in the half court. They look to turn the corner and penetrate on handoffs
- They look to throw the Hammer pass on all baseline penetration and their wings, especially Smith, do a good job of filling the opposite corner for spot up 3.
- We will see a lot of different PNR combinations against Denver. Carmelo will set PNR's and also handle and Miller will set some brush screen PNR's with Martin.

DEFENSIVE NOTES

- Low Post: Their Bigs will play behind in the post. Will usually allow offensive player to get to his spot then try to block shot. They will "White" with some of their perimeter players as well as Evans and Najera. They will trap off of post feeder or from the nail. They will switch a lot of screens then double the post with closest big.
- Pick & Roll: They will switch a lot of pnr's. Seems like they just talk it out on the court depending on who is involved. Their PNR defense differs depending on who is involved. Najera, Evans and sometimes Smith are aggressive in their shows.
  - o Side They will try to "5" wing pnr's. The call is: 5
  - Mid- They will use our "2" mostly
  - Elbow- Contain & Over/Under
- Pindowns: They will try to shoot the gap on pindowns looking for steals. They have also been switching a lot of pindowns.
- Zone Defense: They are playing some 2-3 zone defense. The call is: FIST. They are undisciplined in their zone and will have breakdowns after ball reversals.
- Press Defense: After timeouts and at the beginning of quarters they have been trapping the ball with the point quard.
- They are a very undisciplined defensive team! They will look to cheat plays, go for steals, and leak out early. They will make fouls and get out of position all in an attempt to force turnovers.
- They will switch everything at End of Quarter situations
- We can get easy baskets if we remain active off the ball and on the weak side. They are susceptible to back cuts and movement off the ball.
- Evans and Najera will "Shadow" the ball as it comes up the floor
- We have to be aware of their shot blockers particularly Camby.
